This M&S headboard and divan combination is in blush velvet-effect fabric. The set is available in several other subtle shades. marksandspencer.com

Spindle is a pale oak bedstead by the purveyors of comfort Loaf. The form is pleasantly organic — all the curves are carved by hand and the only straight lines are in the base — and the solid wood frame has a lightly weathered finish. The kingsize is shown here (210cm x 156cm; headboard 110cm high) but the design is also available as a double and a super-king. loaf.com

Max Rollitt's Shaker-inspired four-poster, made to order, is called the New Gloucester. Octagonal pillars taper towards the top, which reaches 214cm high — so probably not one for your loft conversion — and are capped with turned finials. Shown with hand-printed Bennisson fabrics, based on 18th- and 19th-century English and French textiles. maxrollitt.com

From Bethan Gray's collaboration with Anthropologie, this Feather Collection bed features the shape of the season: the scalloped edge. Upholstered here in blue-green cotton velvet, it also comes in nude and light grey. This kingsize bed frame is made from aspen and measures 202cm x 208cm. The headboard is 147cm high.
